Looking Ahead

As will be seen in the advertising columns of this issue, our Annual Fall Fair is to be held on October 4th.

That this year's Fair will be far in advance of any of its predecessors, we are fully confident, more particularly when we remember the splendid inducements that are being offered to exhibitors. With a total Prize List amounting to $2,000 and over, there is every reason to believe that the farmers of the district will show their appreciation by exhibiting largely in as many of the classes as it is possible for them to do.

To ensure the best success, we would suggest that the farmers start in now and get their stock into good shape. The old maxim "To be forewarned is to be forearmed" contains a great deal of truth.

Let us determine to make this Fair what it should be, and it will be unequalled, for we have the best mixed farming district in the Province of Alberta.

The Dominion Election

We are once again in the throes of a Dominion Election, and perhaps never before in the history of Canada, has such a keen public interest been manifested.

As is to be expected, rival political parties are already seeking to confuse the issue on which the Election is being fought.

It is to be deplored that personality enters so largely into our modern politics, and the public press fails in its mission, if it neglects to deprecate such in the strongest and most outspoken language.

In the present instance, the issue viz., Reciprocity, stands out clear-cut before the electorate. It is the duty of each one to study the question on all sides, and in its many phases.

The casting of a vote is a privilege, besides being a sacred trust.

Mail Order or Local Trading

Investigations by a committee of the United States Senate at Washington brought out evidence that the average mail order prices are higher than the prices of local dealers. It has been asserted that the mail order houses list certain articles at a very low price, and by this device gain the impression that they give low rates, whereas the local merchants are making better prices on all but these few special bargains.

If the local merchant would make known what he has to offer, and at what price, the most effective weapon with which to meet the mail order bug-a-boo is at hand. The chief reason that mail order houses make in roads on local trade is because they tell the public what they have to sell and the price. Local merchants have access to the columns of their town papers and job printing departments. Do they use them?

If your neighbors do not know what you have to sell, the fault is yours, not theirs. Invest a few dollars in printers ink and note the result. How are your neighbors to know what your store contains unless you advertise?

CHAPTER XXIII.

The powerful car sped over the rough heath, police train or no train, of that kind of sombre time before the appointed hour for the arrival of Blosset's train in London they had reached Victoria, and was an easy task to steer the car in a neighboring lane, and presently that had the satisfaction of seeing Blosset swagger from a first-class carriage with heavy Gladstone bag in his hand, and a cigar in his mouth, and idly driven off in the direction of the city. Egan in his turn called another cab, giving the driver strict injunctions to keep up the first vehicle eight. It was a long chaise, but it came to an end presently outside an office in Walbrook. He paused at nightfall, and also planned the information that here was the business place of one Drummond, commission agent. Searey had the door closed on himself—“I am safe,” he said to the astonished clerk, “you will discharge me by making a single sound. Don't suppose for a moment that I have had the nerve to do with this; in fact, from your bewildered expression, I am certain that you haven't. Now tell me how long have you been away from this office?”

“About three months,” the clerk replied. “If you gentlemen happen to be police officers—”

“It is exactly what we are,” Grady said. “Do you find business brisk—plenty of clients about?”

The clerk shook his head. He was unable to say that business was inclined to be bad.

“It is so frightened and uneasy that it was somewhat difficult to discern what he was talking about. From time to time the same idea of thinking him out of the inner office. Then Grady crossed the floor and opened the door. He stepped inside merrily, there was a sudden cry, and then the voice of the detective broke out harshly.

“Now drop it,” he said. “Keep your hands out of your pocket—keep them out of yours, too, and together, and the more fun you make of it, the worse it will be for you. You know perfectly well who I am—Blosset; and we are old friends, too. Mr. Drummond, though, is not here, nor is that man—Yours will come with me.”

“But what's the charge?” Blosset blustered. “I am doing business with my friend here quite in a legitimate way.”

“Counterfeit coinage,” Grady said, crisply. “Oh, we know all about it, so you need not try to bluff it out that way. I'll call a cab, and we can drive off comfortably to Bow Street.”

All the swaggering impudence vanished from Blosset. As to his companion, he was not easily put from start to finish. It was about an hour later that Verner and his companions were sent off at lunch at a hotel in the Strand, and Grady, who was now impatiently waiting to hear what was the charge which had laid Blosset and his companion by the neck, Grady said at last as he drew from his pocket and showed to be a brand new sovereign.

“This is it,” he said. “A counterfeiter. You wouldn't think to look at it would you? It is perfectly genuine. If you will balance it on your finger you will find that it is perfect weight, and as to the finish the most meticulous care has been taken. And yet that coin is false, though it contains as much gold as any coin that you have in your purse.”

“Now I begin to understand,” Verner said. “You have already discovered me, and you all about me discovered at the Empire hotel, also what happened quite recently at Merton Grange. I could not for the life of me understand how those fellows had to go by making sovereigns though it contains as much gold as any coin that you have in your purse.”

“Now I begin to understand,” Verner said again. “You have already discovered me, and you all about me discovered at the Empire hotel, also what happened quite recently at Merton Grange. I could not for the life of me understand how those fellows had to go by making sovereigns though it contains as much gold as any coin of equal value. They are made from the metal Fenwick managed to loot from the Four Finger Mine.”

“What do you know all about that?” Verner cried.

“We know all about everything,” Grady said gravely. “We have been tracking Fenwick for years, and it is a terrible indictment we shall have to lay against him when the proper time comes. We have proved beyond the shadow of a doubt that he was one of the murderers of Mr. George Le Fen—but we need not go into that now, for you see that you are anxious to know all about the tricks and subterfuges. After Fenwick was compelled to abandon the Four Finger Mine, he found himself with a great deal of gold, gold which he had won. Then he hit upon the ingenious scheme which we are here to expose. His plan was to make sovereigns and half-sovereigns and put them on the market to gain money. Now do you see what he had to gain by this ingenious programme?”

Brothers in Opposition.

The return of Mr. J. D. Hope, in succession to Viscount Haldane as representative for Haddingtonshire, added another part to the list of brothers in the British House of Commons, and provides the only illustration of one member neutralizing the vote of his brother. In the last Parliament there were two pairs of brothers sitting on opposite sides of the House—Sir John Morpeth (the new Earl of Carlisle) and the Hon. Geoffrey Howard, and Hon. Sir Hope and Mr. J. D. Hope. When news came that Mr. Sir Hope had joined the Unionists, his brothers returned with their brothers, who, however, have now come back to Westminster for different constituents. Other brothers in the House include Mr. John Redmond and Mr. Willie Redmond, the Master of Eltham and Captain Murray, the Colonial Secretary and Robert Horace, the Postmaster-General, and Mr. M. S. Stewart, Mr. H. D. McLaren and Mr. F. W. B. McLaren, Mr. F. E. Smith, K.C., and Harold Smith, K.C., and George Ternell and Mr. Terrell, K.C. Two prominent members are each supported by a son—Mr. Chamberlain and the Nationalist leader.

“The Dandy General.”

So General Sir H. C. G. Plumer, who will probably succeed Sir Horace Smith-Dorrien next year in the Adershot command, is known in the army as the dandy general, with the scrupulous care of his uniform, which he rarely seen without an epaulette, while even in the heat of action he is characterized by extreme politeness of speech and manner. He is said to be the most popular general since for all that, and few men came out of the South African war with a more splendid record. A story which Gen. Plumer is rather fond of relating concerns a woman who set out to inspect an outfitting fort, found the commander intoxicated. He immediately locked him up, but the belligerent one escaped, and making his way to the nearest telephone, dispatched the following message to the Colonial Secretary: “Man here named—questions my sobriety. Wire to aver biassed.”

Slavery in Old Greece.

The Greeks were the first with whom slavery was a natural and useful art, but who also possessed the accomplishment of being able to adapt older plays to the taste of their times and even proved to have the gift of writing really good plays himself, though older and less original than the Greeks.

This young man, whose capacities became of no slight use to the company and the theater, was named William Shakespeare—from “A History of Theatrical Art.”

Shakespeare as an Actor.

About the year 1590 one of the London companies received an addition to the person of a young man who was not only a natural and useful actor, but who also possessed the accomplishment of being able to adapt older plays to the taste of their times and even proved to have the gift of writing really good plays himself, though older and less original than the Greeks.

This young man, whose capacities became of no slight use to the company and the theater, was named William Shakespeare—from “A History of Theatrical Art.”

Very Clever.

Aunt Katie—What brings that young Mr. Stevens to the house so often? Mildred—Well, his mother's stepfather married a second cousin of my father's great-aunt. We're trying to figure out what relation that makes him to me, and it can't be done in one evening.—St. Louis Times

Tarragon Sauce.

To make tarragon sauce, which is a suitable accompaniment for many kinds of fish, vegetables and dressed eggs, beat up the yolks of an egg with a teaspoonful of tarragon vinegar and stir it after a half pint of boiling melted butter after taking the saucenpan from the stove. Continue to stir for a moment to prevent the sauce from curdling, then add a large teaspoonful of finely chopped fresh tarragon and it is ready for use.

NORWAY'S INCOME TAX.

It Reaches All Incomes in Excess of $83.08 Per Year.

How should you like to pay an income tax next to nothing? If you were a Norwegian living at home and earning $100 a year you would be taxed only one-tenth of it if you were married, but if you were single, or if you were married and had no children, you still would be taxed on one-fifth of it.

With an income of $500 a year you would be taxed if unmarried on more than half of your income, if married and having no children on about 44 per cent, and if you were having one child on about 37 per cent, two children on about 31 per cent.

Unmarried and having an income of $2,000 a year in Norway your income tax payment would be $421.22; married, with one child, $500.17. All that you would get off your income tax would be $100 for having six children would be $60, so that you would get off by having five more children would be $44 and six $60.

Married or unmarried in Norway, you could escape paying an income tax only by having no income less than $83.08 a year. Think of paying an income tax out of earnings of $7 a month—New York Press.

Hoop Games.

The hoop race is a very good game because of the exercise derived from it. Besides being a good runner, the winner in this game must be skillful in the use of the hoop.

Married or unmarried, to start according to the size of their bodies, as, of course, a large man can run faster than a small one—the man who was the first to get the most agreed upon wins the race.

Turnip race—is this considered the best of hoop games. The turples gates are two small pegs driven into the ground quite close together or two bricks placed side by side a short distance apart.

Turnip players have hoops and half shell boxes or the gates. The players pass with hoops start off, running the hoop slowly or quickly, as they please, and they must pass the hoop through every gate. If the hoop touches either of the gateposts or goes outside them the keeper takes the hoop, while the turnip player has his place as gatekeeper.

INTERESTING RELICS.

Tomhawk and Rifle Picked Up In North Find Place in Museum.

A rifle and tomahawk which are being presented to the Ontario Government by the Ontario Department of Education, which is related in a letter to an official of the T. & N. O. Railway, on whose right-of-way the weapons were found, were recently presented. Say the officials.

“Relative to the curious which I gave you on your recent trip over the Porcupine branch, the remains of an old Indian tomahawk, found at where our ballast pit and camp No. 3 are situated, would say that I have gathered the following information:

“On the west shore of Frederick Lake there still remain a family of Indians named ‘Buffalo,’ the only survivors from the old Hudson Bay Company post. They live in a small colony of Indians, who brought their furs to this post, and in return got all their supplies. They have been separated from the bridge and a guest in a mother's house. If you are a friend of the bride and unacquainted with the bridegroom she will introduce him to you after you have shaken hands with her. If you have not had an opportunity of meeting him, he is a man who will wish you both every happiness,” but it is an old fashioned custom to offer good wishes to a bride at a reception, and therefore it is seldom done. Guests pass the bride and bridegroom so quickly that it is hard to make time and would weary the newly married couple greatly if all the guests were to follow this lead. Handshakes and smiles are all that circumstances admit of on such occasions. Often the bride has a word or two to say of the bridegroom's past, and receives a reply, and the bridegroom receives a reply on the part of the sender before she can make room for another guest awaiting her turn to shake hands.

Good Form.

The Wedding Reception.

Congratulations are usually offered as soon as an engagement is made known, and therefore there is no need to repeat them at the wedding reception. At the reception, it is good form to shake hands with the bride and bridegroom after having shaken hands with the bride you should not wait to be introduced to her. She will offer to shake hands with you as a matter of course, and you may do the same with the bridegroom and a guest in a mother's house. If you are a friend of the bride and unacquainted with the bridegroom she will introduce him to you after you have shaken hands with her.

True City.

I know a little city on a green and sunny hill.

Where a hundred tiny families have homes.

They are all uncrowded, its leafy lanes are still.

And there no noisy railroad ever comes.

The houses are plain and airy. They hang and swing and sway.

Whether hot or cold the summer breezes blow.

They have no doors or windows, no rough or smooth walls.

But leafy awnings shade the babies from the sun.

The fathers and the mothers all earn their daily bread.

And when the little ones win cry they on not ride of their, they do not walk instead.

They choose the very latest mode—tiny.

The happy little citizens who live so high and free.

They ring and sing and sing and sing the whole day long.

For the peaceful, quiet city is a green and lovely tree.

And the dwellers there are birds, whose life is song.

PEACE TREATY SIGNED

WIDE SCOPE OF TREATY BETWEEN TWO REPUBLICS

Permanent Peace Assured Between France and United States—All Differences that May Arise Between the Two Governments to be Submitted to a Neutral Court—Tremendous Impetus Has Been Given to Peace Campaign.

Paris.—American initiative in unrestricted arbitration was crowned by the signing of a treaty of permanent peace by the terms of which France and the United States agree to submit to a neutral court all differences that arise between the two governments even though the dignity and honor and vital interests of either republic may be involved.

The ceremony of affixing the signatures to the unprecedented document was simplicity itself, but was marked with such enthusiasm that the faces of those who took part glowed.

The signing of the treaty was hailed in France as meaning an extension of the neutrality of the country for the reduction of armaments and the absolute prevention of wars.

The general view is that a tremendous impetus has been given to world-wide pacific campaign.

The figure in long study of the situation, declares that if other nations do not join the movement these who have pledged themselves to the simple principle of maintaining by inserting a clause in the international agreements providing they shall suspend all relations of commerce, navigation and postal intercourse with any country warning upon one of the signers.

For example, the parties agree that if the United States, France and Great Britain should boycott Germany by refusing all relations with her the action would be certain to cause confusion and revolution throughout Europe.

Figure adds: "We shall obtain obligatory arbitration and then limitation or armaments."

Nation says: "The public opinion will seek highly satisfaction the moral and intimate bond established between France and the generous people of the United States who have not come to the aid of their ally, but have shown friendship as a souvenir of the aid which we gave 135 years ago at the moment of American emancipation."

EXPLOIT THE YUKON

Large Concentration Capital of Eight Millions Organized in London

Dawson, Y. T.—The biggest mining company organized for the Yukon, excepting the Alaska Gold and Giga-nichine, is a new $8,000,000 company reported from London by cable as having been formed by the British Arctic Exploration Co. It is to be believed that the concern takes extensive holdings on Dominion, Quartz and other creeks organized during the last two years by Arthur N. Treadgold, the giant fight against the Yukon Gold.

It is also reported that the company absorbs the Northern Light Co., which invested $10,000,000 a year ago installing electric power. Treadgold had already acquired vast holdings of the Canadian Klondike Mining company, including the Boyle concession and dredges.

American Treaty Signed

DISTRIBUTING THE HERD

Several Western Park Sites to Be Stocked with Buffalo from Wainwright

Edmonton.—From the third of the hundred buffalo gathered by a hunting party sent out to the buffalo park at Wainwright, other parks in the Canadian west are to be stocked. It is announced by Howard Douglas, Dawson park superintendent, that a herd will be purchased, smaller than Moose Mountain, Sask., 127 miles southeast of Regina, on the Arcola-Moose Mountain section of the C. P. Ry. The Head Park, near the Water-town Lakes park in southern Alberta, was also under park, are also to be stocked with a similar herd.

At Moose Mountain the Dominion government is acquiring 2,500 acres of park land which will be fenced in as a buffalo range. When fence is completed a month or two hence the Wainwright herd will be shipped to the Saskatchewan park which will provide fine natural habitat for the animals to be arranged. Both Alberta and Saskatchewan have been compelled to conclude a number of weighty points because neither was prepared to press other parks will be supplied with buffalo without the size of the Wainwright herd, rising on the great herd, estimated over 150 calves. The herd was up to 600 head when the natural increase for the year will be over 200 head. In addition another shipment of 40 to 60 head may be needed from Manitoba.

Chief Allard, who has built a big buffalo trap in the Pendleton mountains to capture the remnant of the Parker herd.

Eighteen ten-packs, it is estimated could be stocked with 25 each year without diminishing the size of the Wainwright herd. Parks wherever a suitable range is to be had may be supplied with buffalo from the Wainwright herd which comprises over half the total number of captive buffalo in the world.

King's Visit to India Dangerous

London.—Preparations are now being advanced for King George's visit to India. The royal train will start for the east in mid-November on the P. & O. steamer Medina, which will be accompanied by four cruisers, of which British and Indian naval and military forces will be on board.

The Pan-German Press continues to call the Emperor "William the Conqueror,"

Herr Hartmann in the Zollhof also attacks the major powers, naming him "William the Powerful".

Lord Hardinge is having an anxious time, while the feelings among the natives against the British are very pronounced.

To prevent any trouble in Calcutta just before the arrival of the Emperor, he has issued a decree that work should be suspended.

On December 12 their Majesties will reach Delhi, where the great Durbar will be held, and King George will formally crown himself as the new Calcutta, New Delhi, and one or two additional big cities.

Much Interest in New Early Wheat

London.—Bidders have started on the experimental farm crops and the first plots out are a new unmanured variety of wheat, and Dubenby and Orkney wheat. The new wheat, which is to be grown, is much earlier than Red Fife, and the very early Marquis variety, which has been engaging the attention of farmers greatly, so that the farm officials are not sure that it is not a "fine days' wonder."

This new wheat, which is a good sample, is four or five days earlier than Marquis, and is about that much earlier than Red Fife.

British House to Meet in Autumn

London.—The government's legislative programme, which has been suggested to the cabinet at last, has decided that it will be unable to clear the decks without resort to an autumn session, and recently officials have said that the autumn session that parliament would be adjourned August 1 to the end of October or beginning of November. The interim intervening period will be occupied in getting ready to receive the resolution of vote of confidence, and the disposal of the veto bill, with the rest of the week devoted to the overture finance bill and the resolution providing for payment of members.

Horseflesh Prices Rise

Paris.—The latest phase in the increased cost of living in Paris is a remarkable rise in the price of horseflesh, which has hitherto been 50 per cent. cheaper than bread.

The importance of this commodity in the diet of the poor may be inferred from the fact that the price of horseflesh is consumed in Paris annually in the form of steaks, cutlets and sausages, while the brains are largely employed by pâtissiers and restaurants in the preparation of succulent vol-au-vent.

Parcel Post Reduced

Ottawa.—The post office department has decided that rates of postage between Canada and Newfoundland in both directions, which has heretofore been fifteen cents for each pound or fraction of a pound, has been reduced to twelve cents, effective August 1.

GERMAN PAPERS MAKE ATTACK ON THE KAISER

Prospect of Settlement of Moroccan Question is Welcomed, but Is Likely That the Terms of the Agreement Will Cause Dissatisfaction—Patriots Blame the Kaiser Over the Final Outcome.

Berlin.—The prospect of a speedy settlement of the Morocco question between Germany and France is welcomed on every hand, but the terms of the agreement, when they become known, probably will cause considerable dissatisfaction in both Germany and France. The negotiations between M. Cambon, the French ambassador to Berlin, and Dr. von Kiderlen-Waechter have been difficult and the French people even yet are not quite as optimistic as the Germans over the final outcome.

Both Germany and France have been compelled to conclude a number of weighty points because neither was prepared to press

Von Kiderlen-Waechter is wholly aware of the whole situation, especially as he has not secured a fullfillment of his demands. French diplomats are preparing for a series of indignation among patriots on both sides of the frontier. The first indication of indignation came from the Pan-German Post.

CHIEF CRAWFORD

Advised Hyome for Catarrh

J. Wilfred Brown of Water street, Campbellton, N. B., says: "Hyome cured me of a severe case of cataract and asthma after four years of suffering. I was constantly hawking and spitting and the catarrhal droppings that came from the head into my throat affected my stomach and I could not enjoy my meals. Chief Crawford having the same trouble advised me to try Hyome. I did so and soon was without a sign of the health racking disease that had troubled me for so long. I recommend Hyome to all catarrhal sufferers."

Hyome (pronounced High-me) is guaranteed to cure asthma, bronchitis, coughs and colds. A complete outfit consists of a hard rubber inhaler, a bottle of Hyome and a unique dropper for filling the inhaler. Your druggist will supply you the outfit for $1 (extra bottles 50¢) or postpaid from the R. T. Booth Co., Limited, Fort Erie, Ont. Sold and guaranteed by H. W. Chambers.

Chemical Fogs

That mechanically and chemically produced fogs, to be turned loose at will, may become a more important factor than the Hague Peace Tribunal in the elimination of war is the most significant feature of the offer of a local inventor to sell to the government a secret process by which it is claimed fogs can be produced whenever and wherever wanted. The idea originated along agricultural lines as the result of an effort to protect growing crops from the sun during dry periods, and to supply them with moisture. It developed, however, that while the fogs might be used to blot out the sunlight, the moisture which they contained would be of little or no value as a substitute for rain. It was then that the value in case of war of fogs which could be produced at will became apparent. The squadron of an enemy once enveloped by one of these artificial fogs would be practically helpless and at the mercy of the torpedo boats, while even on land a fog-bound army would be greatly hampered. While the process by which the fogs are produced has not yet been proven on a large scale, the possibilities are apparent and it may be that the idea at first considered as a purely defensive war measure may yet result in making both land and naval battles impossible.

For Style Reform

A society of some 70 persons has been organized in Berlin, Germany, for the purpose of reforming the style of men's garments. It is composed of persons from all sorts of professions, and aims at abolishing trousers, substituting knickerbockers, white coat and waistcoat are to give way to a sort of a loose blouse hanging well down to the knees. Linen of all sorts is to be discarded.

The Cologne Gazette points out that Germany can have no influence over the world's fashion for men's clothing because of the predominance of the military uniform over civilian clothing there, where even the emperor never lays aside his helmet for a silk hat. It thinks that the fashion for men's garments will continue to be set at London.

Grain Raising Experiences By A. E. R.

Timothy Seed—Cut your timothy after the second blossom comes off. If you cut it before that time it is injurious to the roots, and consequently a poor crop the next year. It is just the same as if you should cut a tree when growing and full of sap. The stump will rot much sooner than if cut in winter.

Grain Harvest—If barley or wheat should get frosted, the sooner it is cut the better, as neither will grow to do any good afterwards. It is different with oats, and you should let it be in any hurry to cut as they will grow and improve after frost, especially in wet seasons.
